53 ANNUAL REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC HEALTH ON THE HEALTH OF THE PEOPLE OF LINCOLNSHIRE 2016

Consideration was given to a report by Tony McGinty, Interim Director of Public Health which invited the Committee to consider his Annual Report of the Director of Public Health for Lincolnshire for 2016. The Committee was advised that the focus of this year's report was the mental health and mental illness profile of local people.

It was explained that good mental health was the cornerstone of the achievement of other life goals and that it was essential that the importance of good mental health was not overlooked. The Committee was advised that recent research had identified that one in four adults would be diagnosed with a common mental health disorder during their lifetime. It was also highlighted that many people live with mental health issues which are either undiagnosed or fall below the threshold for a clinical diagnosis. It was estimated that at any one time over 100,000 people in Lincolnshire aged 16 and over were living with a diagnosed common mental health disorder.

Mr McGinty advised that his report had been split up into a section considering mental health risk factors, and then sections addressing mental health conditions in three key groups; perinatal and maternal, childhood and adolescent, and adult and older adult. The report included 17 recommendations for improvement based around these key areas. Rather than just highlighting these issues to the people of Lincolnshire through his report, Mr McGinty declared his intention to continue to raise these issues over the next 12 months and to see how improvements could be made. He was interested to see how the Health and Well-Being Strategy could address some of the issues he had raised and how mental health could be addressed in a strategic sense.

A discussion took place based on the report and a presentation that Mr McGinty made to the Committee. The following issues were raised by members of the Committee:

Social isolation was highlighted as a problem particularly amongst older people. It was observed that Lincolnshire may be at risk because of the higher numbers of older couples who move to Lincolnshire for retirement only for one partner to die leaving the other person potentially isolated some distance from the rest of their family.

9 MARCH 2017

Modern living could contribute to mental health problems because of the lack of open and green spaces and planners needed to do more to consider these issues when designing new housing developments. It was also mentioned that reliance on the internet and new services such as on-line shopping actually reduced valuable social interaction.

It was queried whether the 18 week referral target for adult outpatients was always met and it was confirmed that performance against this target was strong in the west of the County but that the picture became more mixed towards the east coast.

Partnership working was highlighted as an important aspect of providing proper support to people suffering from mental health problems. Engagement with the police was good and it was confirmed that there were plans for a mental health worker to be present in the police control room to provide advice and triaging support. The next three year strategic policing assessment would also consider taking a different approach to this issue.

It was observed that there can still be a stigma around mental illness despite great efforts to reduce this perception.

Members raised the issue of mental health problems amongst children and Mr McGinty commented that improved diagnosis allowed children to access the services they needed more easily. It was observed that exam stress could be a contributory factor and it was highlighted that too much testing could actually reduce learning outcomes.

Further issues relating to children's mental health were discussed and the impact that child poverty could have on a child's mental well-being. The benefits of physical activity were raised along with the environmental benefits of green, open spaces.

A concern was raised about how people with mental health problems were catered for when attending Accident and Emergency (A & E) as the pressurised environment of A & E could be difficult for some people to deal with. Members were advised that health professionals had recognised this issue and that dedicated mental health staff were being restored to A & E departments.

The Committee supported the choice of mental health as the topic for this year's Annual Report and felt that this would help raise the profile and understanding of mental illness. The Committee congratulated Mr McGinty on the quality of the report and on his intention to take a pro-active approach and to continue to highlight issues relating to mental health over the life of the report.

RESOLVED

That the Annual Report on the Health of the People of Lincolnshire from the Interim Director of Public Health be received.

54      QUARTER 3 PERFORMANCE - 1 OCTOBER TO 31 DECEMBER 2016

The Committee considered a report containing performance information for Quarter 3, 2016/17 covering the period from 1 October to 31 December 2016. The performance information related to Community Safety, Libraries and Heritage and Public Health.

Members noted that the number of reports of domestic abuse had dropped from the same period of 2015/16 and concern remained that instances of domestic abuse were under-reported. The Committee was advised that visits to the domestic abuse section of the Council's website were increasing and that there was a levelling-out of reported cases across the region. It was also reported that central government additional funding was becoming available to help combat this type of crime.

Members queried the number of PCSOs in Lincolnshire and officers advised that there should be 149 PCSOs in Lincolnshire at any one time. However, due to xx this figure had temporarily dropped to 118. An internal recruitment drive was underway and the Committee was also informed that Lincolnshire also benefitted from the contribution of 60 volunteer PCSOs.

The issue of street lighting was raised and how the earlier switching-off of street lights might be impacting levels of crime. Officers responded that it would be usual to look at any trends when 12 months data was available and that even then it was questionable whether it would be possible to say any changes were directly attributable to street lighting policy. It was confirmed that the policy would be reviewed in due course as with any other new policy initiative.

It was noted that the target for inspections of high risk premises by Trading Standards had not been met. Cumulative visits up to the end of the reporting period stood at 280 against a target of 304. Officers acknowledged that visits were slightly behind schedule and attributed this in part to some resources having to be reassigned to deal with Avian influenza incidents. Officers remained confident that the target would be achieved by the end of Quarter 4.

RESOLVED

That the Quarter 3 Performance – 1 October to 31 December 2016 report be received; and the comments raised by Committee be noted.

55      COMMUNITY AND PUBLIC SAFETY SCRUTINY COMMITTEE WORK

RESOLVED

That the work programme as set out in Appendix A to the report presented be received.
