Domestic Demand Strong in Face of Overseas Market Instability

Levels of domestic demand remain strong and stable for local businesses. This is the key finding from the latest set of results of the Lincolnshire Quarterly Economic Survey.

This should improve over the next quarter with an increase in businesses stating improved advance orders and bookings.

Turning to export markets, what we are seeing at present is a polarisation of fortunes for businesses in Services and Production.

Exporting businesses in the Service sector are experiencing stable conditions with over four in five stating that sales have either improved or stayed the same.

Compare this with Manufacturing where only two thirds are reporting a similar position, and a third now saying that conditions have worsened.

Looking further ahead, 95 per cent of Service sector businesses stated that export orders/bookings had either increased or stayed the same. For Manufacturing this figure was much less at just over two thirds.

Whilst the numbers are small for exporting businesses (bearing in mind that only around one in eight businesses operate in export markets), Manufacturing businesses do appear to be more at the mercy to changes to the various factors at play in export markets.

One factor in this will be the Pounds continued and increasing strength against the Euro which has risen to around 1.4 Euros, a figure last seen back in 2007.

This will also be one of the factors driving the recent increase in uncertainty among local businesses. One in five businesses now have negative expectations for the year ahead (in terms of their levels of profitability and turnover), up from the one in ten which has been the consistent level for the last few quarters.

This negativity has also meant an increase in businesses stating that they have revised downwards plans for investing in capital and /or training.

Despite this increase in uncertainty amongst some businesses, strong demand and relatively stable markets have meant that more businesses are looking to recruit over the next quarter (28 per cent – the highest figure on record).

Finally, and on a more positive note, there has been a noticeable increase in businesses stating that cash flow has improved since Q1.
