Foreword

Lincolnshire's Culture matters.

It matters because it is about the way we live our lives and enjoy ourselves. It is why many people get up in the morning, walk the dog, read a book, listen to music, visit a museum or go to the cinema. It is about keeping physically and mentally active and for some, aspiring to great things such as Olympic medals.

It matters because it generates £1.2 billion to our economy and provides employment to the equivalent of over 25,000 full-time people as well as volunteering opportunities to many thousands more. It was one of the main reasons why over 17 million tourists visited the county from all over the world in 2008.

"Cultural services play a crucial role in tackling social exclusion, contributing to regeneration, to promoting safer communities, encouraging healthier lifestyles, providing opportunities for voluntary and community activity and stimulating lifelong learning". They can also make a significant economic contribution through tourism and the creative industries.

This is Lincolnshire's first truly county-wide Cultural Strategy. It was developed during 2009 through consultation with all eight of Lincolnshire's local authorities, a large number of organisations with roles in cultural activity and the people of Lincolnshire. As the country's economy recovers from the most severe economic downturn of recent times, our mission over the next five years is to develop, promote and enjoy the wide range of opportunities to participate in Lincolnshire's culture, which will help improve the County's economy, wellbeing and quality of life for its residents.

The activities set out in the Action Plan focus on Promotion, Provision and Participation. So whether you are a sportsman or woman, artist, practitioner, promoter, visitor or volunteer we hope that you can work with us to make Lincolnshire a great place to live in and visit. A place where everyone can find and enjoy the lifestyle that suits them best.

¹DCMS (1999) Guidance on Local Cultural Strategies

Executive Summary

Introduction

This is the Cultural Strategy for Lincolnshire, developed by a range of stakeholders and supported by the County Council and all District Councils, as well as other local and regional organisations. It is a 'joined up' Cultural Strategy for the whole of Lincolnshire, with common aims and objectives that all of the Local Authorities (and other relevant bodies) within Lincolnshire can work towards.

The Strategy aims to champion Lincolnshire's culture regionally and nationally and to place Lincolnshire amongst the top English counties renowned for their approach to their county's culture. It offers a framework which describes how aims and priorities can be delivered by working in response to local need and towards shared goals. It promotes partnership working in the public, private and voluntary sectors, to demonstrate that culture is important to the county and regional economy. It promotes regular engagement with all of Lincolnshire's diverse communities and helps them to develop, thrive and contribute to an improved quality of life.

It is particularly important to stress that this Strategy seeks to realise and reinforce the overarching vision for the County, the Sustainable Community Strategy, toward which all organisations are working.

Lincolnshire's Culture and Its Potential

Lincolnshire is the most easterly county in the East Midlands and the fourth largest county in terms of land mass in England. It is a rural county which comprises seven districts: Boston; East Lindsey; Lincoln City; North Kesteven; South Holland; South Kesteven; and West Lindsey. Each district of Lincolnshire has its own unique cultural landscape and population characteristics which have implications for service provision.

The key contributor to the ongoing population growth is in-migration. Inward particular, more people are travelling from parts of Europe to Lincolnshire to find employment. Such workers bring with them their own unique traditions and cultures. By preparing for and providing opportunities to celebrate such traditions, migrants/guest workers and their families will integrate quickly into our communities, strengthening community cohesion. Whilst the average age of inward-migrants is consistently lower than the average of residents, the number of older people coming to the coastal areas of the county from other parts of the country and the outward-migration of younger people remains a key issue for Lincolnshire.

Despite the county's fast rate of population growth, its density remains much lower than both the regional and national figures, which has implications for the delivery of services across such a large geographical area. This challenge is further heightened by the generally poor public transport infrastructure in large areas of the County which further limits physical access to services.

Key Lincolnshire Facts and Figures

Cultural Economy

- Creative industry clusters are found in Lincoln, Grantham, Boston and Spalding, but there is economic activity in more rural areas and the coastal district²
- Tourist and culture industries combined contribute approximately £1.2 billion of the total value added for Lincolnshire and employ approximately 25,000 full-time employees, about 10 per cent of the total workforce³
- The creative industries sector has high levels of Gross Value Added (GVA)⁴, rising to £37,000 per employee in the Visual arts. This is higher than the Lincolnshire mean GVA per employee figure⁵
- Lincolnshire's programme of festivals is a significant contributor to the local economy of county. Their direct, indirect and induced contribution taken together generates economic benefits amounting to almost £1.5 million⁶.
- In 2008 all tourists (including staying visitor trips, both overseas and domestic and day visitors), visiting Lincolnshire spent a total of £958.05 million, which represents just over a 19 per cent increase from 2003⁷.
- The income generated through tourism can make an important contribution to a county's economy. In 2008 Lincolnshire welcomed 17.072 million visitors (including day time and overnight domestic and international visitors), who spent a total of £958.05 million⁸.

Cultural Participation

■ Data from Sport England/DCMS in June 2009 shows Lincolnshire (21.4%) performing approximately equally with the English average (21.5%) in terms of the percentage of people reporting participation in 3x30mins per week moderate intensity sport (National Indicator 8)⁹

- In terms of use of public libraries (National Indicator 9) and visits to museums and galleries (National Indicator 10) in the last 12 months, the 2009 Active People Survey shows Lincolnshire performing below the English and regional averages)¹⁰.
- Lincolnshire is above the regional average, but below the English average for 'Engagement in the Arts' (National Indicator 11) in December 2009, 42.8% of people in Lincolnshire reported engagement in the arts, compared with the English average of 45.2% and the regional average of 42.6%¹¹.
- The rate for sports volunteering has fallen by 0.1% to 5.6%. However, this is still above the regional (5.3%) and national (4.9%) averages 12.
- Levels of activity in a club setting have risen by 0.4% to 23.3%. This is below the regional (24.1%) and national (24.7%) averages.
- The amount of people taking part in competitive sport has fallen by 0.4% to 15.9%. However, this is still above the regional (15.1%) and national (14.6%) averages.
- In the first 9 months of the free swimming scheme, 249,415 children aged 16 and under, and 75,868 adults aged 60 and over participated in casual swimming sessions at publicly accessible swimming pools across Lincolnshire.

The county boasts a diversity of natural landscapes, from the beautiful hill country of the Wolds and the waterscapes of the Fens, to the extensive eastern coastline, home to the world renowned Gibraltar Point. Lincolnshire's appeal is not isolated to its natural beauty¹³., but encompasses a rich menu of cultural events, activities and places of historical interest to visit and enjoy. Residents and visitors alike can pick from an impressive range of heritage sites, from the 11th Century Lincoln Castle to the Elizabethan mansion of Burghley House at Stamford. The rich and varied nature of Lincolnshire's cultural offer make it an attractive destination for both domestic and international tourists. Events such as Lincolnshire show, Waddington Air Show, Spalding Flower Parade and Lincoln Christmas market are important attractors.

Lincolnshire's desire to be an active partner in major world events is incredibly strong, for example, the Cultural Olympiad, Commonwealth Games and World Cup. These provide opportunities to build on national and international activities, such as the recent Black/North SEAS project in East Lindsey. The 2012 Steering Group was established in Lincolnshire in March 2006 in order to maximise the potential benefits of the Cultural Olympiad to the county. The 2012 steering group aims:

"To ensure benefit to Lincolnshire from the hosting of the London 2012 Olympic & Paralympic Games, through the advancement of the London Games and the Olympic & Paralympic brands pre and post 2012." 14

The Action Plan covers a variety of themes including: young people; volunteering; events; economic development; culture; elite performance sport; pre games training camps; and legacy.

"As 2012 Champion for Lincolnshire, and Chairman of the 2012 Steering Group, I am determined to make sure that the county benefits from this fantastic opportunity. It is not just about sport – although we have many great athletes to be proud of - but is about all aspects of our culture, as well as bringing economic and health benefits for our communities.

It is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to have the country – and this county – in the spotlight on a worldwide stage. The Steering Group is working to showcase the widest possible range of activities, to build relationships between people of different backgrounds and nationalities, and to get everyone, from the very youngest to the very oldest, involved in some form of cultural activity in the lead up to and during the Games.

This needs to be a true team effort, with athletes and performers, professionals and volunteers, Councils and businesses all working together to make this a truly memorable and life-changing event.

The focus must be not just on 2012 itself, but also on creating a permanent legacy for the future. This will include training and developing people, growing the voluntary and community sector and maintaining investment in this important aspect of people's lives."

Councillor Mrs Doreen Stephenson Lincolnshire 2012 Champion and Leader of East Lindsey District Council

In 2008, a joint strategic partnership between Lincolnshire Primary Care Trust and Lincolnshire County Council set up the Health and Wellbeing Fund. One of the programme's aims is to enhance the quality of life and capacity to contribute to local regeneration of local people, including their health and cultural and sports opportunities. A number of the Health and Wellbeing Fund projects involve engagement in cultural activities to support physical and mental health improvements, for which Lincolnshire Sports Partnership is a key project delivery partner. The most high profile of initiative is the the two-year free swimming scheme launched in 2009 and funded by a combination of central government grant NHS Lincolnshire.

Lincolnshire has a traditional culture based on a long heritage of song, dance, music, local history, local festivals and sport. There are 292 outdoor tennis courts, 325 adult football pitches and 113 cricket pitches across the county, with over 1,900 sports clubs registered on the Sporting Lincs database¹⁵.

A Fundamental Review of Lincolnshire library service was undertaken in 2007 to ensure that the network of 48 static and 16 mobile libraries was fit for purpose, sustainable and able to deliver the County Council's strategic objectives. As a result of a comprehensive public consultation exercise 13 key areas, including use of new technology and increased partnership working, for improvement were identified and these are currently being rolled out in a series of phases.

The scale and rural nature of the county can affect people's ability to access cultural services and as such is an ongoing challenge for service providers in the county. Lincolnshire has a number of major venues including The Hub, the National Centre for Crafts and Design; the Lincoln Centre for Performing Arts (LPAC), The Collection: Art and Archaeology in Lincolnshire in Lincoln and a network of Arts Centres. In rural counties, the arts in particular have proved to have great impact on connecting communities and tackling rural isolation issues. Lincolnshire was one of the key founders of rural and community touring schemes, taking performing arts out of the city and market towns into village halls, churches and pubs through the development of a network of local village promoters¹⁶.

Strong cultural provision will also play an important role in the development of new communities in the new growth areas, in terms of creating attractive and interesting places to live and work and in promoting community cohesion and a sense of identity. There are over 60 museums in the county, placing Lincolnshire on the map in terms of an unrivalled cultural asset, with a network of heritage organisations distributed throughout the county enabling people to learn about their heritage and participate in cultural activities. In a rural county, these sites are rooted in their communities. Lincolnshire has been dedicated to the delivery of the Renaissance in the Regions Programme and has a small number of Designated Collections.

Local celebrations add vibrancy to the culture of Lincolnshire, such as the Pumpkin Festival in Spalding, the annual Wolds Words Literature Festival and the Lincolnshire Christmas Food and Drink Fair. A range of sporting and physical activities are on offer both on land or in the water and every week residents participate in a variety of interesting activities and clubs in local libraries and village halls around the county, from reading groups to dance workshops.

Lincoln Cathedral and the county's churches are also of significant heritage and cultural interest and play a key role in the cultural life of the communities they serve. Many churches are keen to open their doors outside service times and to welcome local people and visitors to discover, enjoy and appreciate their buildings. Lincoln Cathedral alone is supported by 400 volunteers, and there are 650 parish churches and extensive parish records held across the County. Recent inward migration means that there is now a rich diversity in religious belief and custom within Lincolnshire's communities.

It is, however, important to stress that many of the cultural organisations in Lincolnshire are very small and are run solely by volunteers. Without them, in large parts of the county there would be no, or very little, cultural provision. In order to ensure that there is a universal cultural provision and equality of access to culture across the county is it vital that support is given to these organisations.

For example, in areas where organisations simply do not have the capacity, but where collections, heritage or buildings exist, partnership should be the key so that cultural opportunities can be delivered with and through existing heritage facilities. It is estimated that 95% of sporting activity could not take place without the support of volunteers and as part of the 2012 Legacy Plan, volunteering features as a key delivery element. It is not just that cultural organisations provide opportunities for people to participate through volunteering or that volunteers extend the amount and range of cultural provision: it is that without them there would be large areas of the county with limited or no cultural provision. Indeed, Lincolnshire is slightly above the English average for National Indicator 6 'People who have given unpaid help at least once a month over the last 12 months¹⁷.

Whilst there is much to be proud of in Lincolnshire through the opportunities it provides in engaging with culture, the public consultation carried out to inform the current Strategy found that people feel that more should be done to improve the quality and number of facilities and activities related to culture in Lincolnshire. Consultees also highlighted the need to improve the promotion of cultural activities¹⁸.

Introduction

This is the Cultural Strategy for Lincolnshire, developed by a range of stakeholders and supported by the County Council and all District Councils, as well as other local and regional organisations. It is a 'joined up' Cultural Strategy for the whole of Lincolnshire County, with common aims and objectives that all of the Lincolnshire Local Authorities (and other relevant bodies) within Lincolnshire can work towards.

It is hoped that the longer term Vision for culture in Lincolnshire will be achieved by 2020. This Strategy covers a five-year period from 2010 to 2015. In order to ensure their continuing relevance, the action plans will be reviewed on an annual basis.

Process of Development

In March 2009, it was considered timely to review the development of a strategy for culture across the whole of Lincolnshire. The process has been managed through a Project Team and Project Board, which included elected members. The Lincolnshire Senior Cultural Officers Group has also been pivotal in driving forward its development.

Based on a commitment to work together to deliver good quality, accessible services to the people who live in and visit Lincolnshire, the County and District Councils dedicated their time towards finding out what people want, or do not want in terms of culture, from a consultation exercise.

545 people responded to the public consultation exercise about cultural provision in Lincolnshire; 312 surveys were completed online (through Lincolnshire County Council's website), the remaining 233 were paper questionnaires (placed in libraries, heritage sites, museums and centres for culture).

The results raised these key points:

- People who completed this survey suggested that the activities they considered to be 'cultural' were those that were traditionally thought of as that, and the majority had undertaken them.
- More should be done to improve the facilities and activities related to culture, and the quantity of these. It was felt that local authorities' role should be to facilitate through better promotion, finance, encouragement, coordination and information; rather than undertake the activities themselves.

- There was very little disparity in the results when split by gender and age. The only significant differences were found between whether the age groups considered 'socialising in a pub, bar or restaurant' or 'volunteering on a regular basis' to be a 'cultural activity'. Generally, the older generations thought of these less as 'cultural activities'.
- A significant difference was found in the response to whether people agreed that Lincolnshire's local authorities should 'Improve the range of activity'. People living in Lincoln and South Holland were either more happy with what was on offer or felt this was not as much of an issue as those living in the other areas who were consulted.

A second stage of consultation was undertaken on the first draft of the Strategy, distributed to over 300 individuals and groups, which generated 23 further responses about its content.

The consultation with public and stakeholders has enabled priorities to be identified to increase opportunities to directly and indirectly participate in cultural activity, taking into consideration the new economic climate likely to be faced over the next 5 years.

Purpose of the Cultural Strategy

The Strategy aims to champion Lincolnshire's culture regionally and nationally and to place Lincolnshire amongst the top English counties renowned for their approach to their county's culture.

It offers a framework which describes how aims and priorities can be delivered by working in response to local need and towards shared goals. It promotes partnership working in the public, private and voluntary sectors, to demonstrate that culture is important to the county and regional economy. It promotes regular engagement with all of Lincolnshire's diverse communities and helps them to develop, thrive and contribute to an improved quality of life.

The Strategy includes activities as follows:

- Providing arts development, facilities, festivals and events;
- Encouraging inclusive and sustainable cultural activity
- Developing skills through engaging in cultural activity;
- Providing libraries, museums and heritage (including built and natural environments);
- Providing opportunities for well being through cultural activity;
- Providing of parks and open spaces;
- Promoting cultural tourism;
- Providing sports development, facilities and events;
- Celebrating stories, songs, customs and dialect; and
- Thriving economies through cultural activity.

The Cultural Strategy for Lincolnshire is for everyone interested in the culture of Lincolnshire, that culture can be everything we do. It is a collaborative document developed following consultation with stakeholders and members of the public. Through the delivery of this strategy local people and visitors will be able to see how culture is being developed for their benefit.

The Strategy is being led by Lincolnshire County Council and the seven District Councils and has been endorsed by a range of key partners in the county, who will play a fundamental role in realising the aims of the Strategy and are welcomed to assist in its delivery.

It is particularly important to stress that this Strategy seeks to realise and reinforce the overarching vision for the County, the Sustainable Community Strategy, toward which all organisations are working.

Acknowledgements

We would like to thank everyone who has been involved in the strategy consultation and development process. This includes key partners and members of the public who have given up their time to assist us in producing this document. Your thoughts and ideas have been very important in ensuring that the Strategy captures and reflects the needs of the people who live in and visit Lincolnshire.

The Lincolnshire Cultural Strategy provides us with a plan to take forward but it requires the support and commitment of our partners to ensure that its aims are achieved. Together we can develop, promote and enjoy Lincolnshire's culture to all who live in and visit the county, making it a rich, vibrant and prosperous place.

Lincolnshire's Culture and its Potential

Lincolnshire is the most easterly county in the East Midlands and the fourth largest county in terms of land mass in England. It is a rural county which comprises seven districts: Boston; East Lindsey; Lincoln City; North Kesteven; South Holland; South Kesteven; and West Lindsey.

Population estimates released in 2009 by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) show that the County population is now 698,000 people. This is an increase of 8 per cent on the 2001 Census figures, which is higher than the national and East Midlands region increases (5 per cent and 6 per cent respectively)¹⁹. The county contains a number of growth point areas, most notably North Kesteven district and the town of Sleaford, which are in the top five fastest growing districts towns and districts in the UK respectively. The 2008 Office for National Statistics population projections for Lincolnshire demonstrate that the county's population will continue to grow and will reach 900,000 people between 2020-2031, with people aged over 65 making up a larger proportion of the population over time. This growth is promoted by housing targets to accommodate these new people and changes in Household sizes. The planning system will to a large extent dictate where these new homes will be built and therefore influence how and where cultural activities are in demand.

The key contributor to the ongoing population growth is inward migration. and much of this growth comes from within the East Midlands and the rest of England, although more people are travelling from other parts of Europe to Lincolnshire to find employment. Such workers bring with them their own unique traditions and cultures. By preparing for and providing opportunities to celebrate such traditions, migrants/guest workers and their families will integrate quickly into our communities, strengthening community cohesion. Whilst the average age of in-migrants is consistently lower than the average of residents, the number of older people coming to the coastal areas of the county and the out-migration of younger people remains a key issue for Lincolnshire.

The long term migration patterns of older people moving to the coastal areas has resulted in a clear east/west divide in the county in terms of areas where those aged 65+ tend to reside. This has implications for culture in Lincolnshire, which this Strategy will look to address, primarily through increased choice of cultural activities and venues used in local communities.

Despite the county's fast rate of population growth, its density remains much lower than both the regional and national figures, which has implications for the delivery of services across such a large geographical area. This challenge is further heightened by the generally poor public transport infrastructure in large areas of the County which further limits physical access to services.

Indeed, the Place Survey undertaken in 2008 show satisfaction with leisure facility services being below the regional and national averages²⁰.

In addition, many rural areas and towns in the County also do not have the higher broadband connection speeds available in urban areas. Whilst download speeds in the East Midlands are not amongst the slowest in the UK (3.28 mbps)²¹, without fast broadband people's ability to access information and services available online is affected, as are rural businesses as business deals increasingly move online.

The Lincolnshire economy has increased in value year on year since 1997 and is currently estimated to be worth £9 billion. However, it still lags behind the region and most of the UK. One reason for Lincolnshire's low position in the national economic league table is the decline of its traditional agricultural and manufacturing industries, which also tend to be lower value added and lower skilled. Fourteen per cent of the county's population lives in wards that are amongst the 20 per cent most deprived in the country. The low skills/low wage economy of these wards limits the extent to which some people are able to afford access to cultural opportunities. In 2004, the Lincolnshire Creative Solutions Initiative, through funding provided by the European Regional Development Fund, invested £900,000 in the development of Creative Industries in Lincolnshire, providing structured development opportunities for new and existing businesses to grow organically. The programme offered financial and technical support to business to enable them to identify market opportunities and enable growth both economically and creatively. The Lincolnshire and the Creative Industries Final Report (March 2008) points out that the current infrastructure of cultural organisations needs additional investment, as well as stronger strategic organisation to be able effectively to attract and sustain creative businesses.

A recent survey looking at standards of living across the counties of England placed Lincolnshire 29th out of 122 in terms of performance across indicators including the labour market, housing, the environment, crime, education and health²². Crime rates in the county are low but health inequalities persist across the county. People in the east are more likely to be diagnosed with diabetes or have an unhealthy weight. Lincoln residents are more likely to smoke or drink heavily, whilst Boston has a lower life expectancy for males.

Lincolnshire County Council's Culture and Adult Education section contributes to Lincolnshire's cultural vibrancy through its network of static, mobile, prison, and hospital libraries. It also operates Lincoln Castle, Lincolnshire Archives, the Battle of Britain Memorial Flight Visitor centre and a number of museums. Post 19 learning is supported through direct delivery and a number of contracts with colleges and other providers providing a range of learning opportunities through culture. In a similar way the County Council has over twenty service level agreements with charitable or not for profit organisations to support Lincolnshire's heritage, arts, sports and community development.

Each district of Lincolnshire has its own unique cultural landscape and population characteristics which have implications for service provision now and in the future, as the populations grow and new homes are built, as detailed below.

Boston

Boston is situated on the south-east coast of Lincolnshire and has a population of 58,300 people (based on ONS mid-year 2009 population estimates). It is a growing area, with more people moving into Boston from outside, especially economic migrants from the European Union. More than 65 different languages are spoken within the district. Boston also experiences high levels of obesity and as such much effort has been focused on increasing resident's participation in physical activity. One of the Council's main priorities is to ensure Boston is a place for everyone — a place that values diversity — as well as ensuring its residents are healthy and active.

For more information please go to www.boston.gov.uk

East Lindsey

East Lindsey is the most easterly District in Lincolnshire and contains the only coastline in the East Midlands, with 3 Blue Flag Award winning beaches and several Sites of Special Scientific Interest (SSSIs). With the Wolds Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (AONB) inland, and the fenland landscape in the south of the District, the landscape provides an impressive backdrop for a wide range of cultural activity.

That said, the District contains some of the most rural and sparsely populated wards in England and has an aging population with 50.5 per cent of its population aged 45 yrs or above, compared to a national average of 39.6 per cent. A high proportion of people from the older age group (65+) live in the coastal areas and health outcomes are significantly worse in this area.

The Council's Corporate Strategy (2007-2012) priorities are to: improve economic prosperity, nurture our distinctive and vibrant communities, and reduce inequality to improve quality of life. This includes a clear emphasis on improving health outcomes, increasing skill levels and attracting a broader range of tourists.

Taken together, the landscape, demographics and Council ambition are driving culture-led regeneration. With investment in leisure facilities and development of high quality sports, arts and events with a regional, national and international focus, we are improving social and economic outcomes, as well as increasing participation in the arts.

For more information please go to www.e-lindsey.gov.uk.

City of Lincoln

Lincoln is a growing city which has seen significant investment in new venues like the Collection and LPAC, stimulated by a successful tourism industry and the rapid expansion of the University.

The City Council's arts provision is directed through the Drill Hall with a remit to support the increasingly diverse community and bring cultural opportunities to disadvantaged neighbourhoods.

Sport, play and open spaces are prioritised to improve the quality of life of citizens and address serious health inequalities.

The creative industries are an important part of the local economy and are supported through initiatives such as The Terrace and the Think Tank.

For more information please go to www.lincoln.gov.uk.

North Kesteven

North Kesteven is a large, diverse, rural district located at the heart of Lincolnshire. With a population of 106,100 people (based on ONS mid-year 2009 population estimates), it is the fastest growing district in Lincolnshire, with the second highest rate of inward migration in the county. In line with other districts in Lincolnshire North Kesteven is expected to see a decrease in the percentage of younger people and an increase in the higher ages with a projected rise of 2.2% in over 65s. The district is also set to experience significant housing growth and the vision for the district is to create and enhance 100 flourishing communities that are fair, thriving and inclusive, allowing equal and full access to opportunities and services.

The Council has established a reputation for its commitment to cultural services over many years. Among its successes are arts NK, Hub National Centre for Craft and Design, Design Factory and Natural World Centre Whisby. Arts NK is a well established arts development team who work in and beyond the District. In 2009 Arts NK led 1,433 workshops, employed 821 artists and practitioners over 1,252 days and produced 381 performances and exhibitions which resulted in 125,583 attendances. The Hub, attracting over 70,000 visits a year, is the leading national centre for contemporary craft outside of London. It offers a constantly changing programme of exhibitions, hands-on courses and the opportunity to buy and commission original pieces of contemporary craft and design. Design Factory is the leading creative development agency in the East Midlands having assisted 62 businesses in starting up their creative practice with 100% surviving their first 12 months. The Natural World Centre at Whisby Natural Park is a successful partnership between the District, Lincolnshire County Council and the Lincolnshire Wildlife Trust. The site has seen increasing numbers of visitors increasing by 100% to 200,000 in 2009. In addition, the Council works in partnership with Leisure Connection to provide a range of sports and leisure activities at Sleaford Leisure Centre, North Kesteven Sports Centre and Northgate Sports Hall. In addition, the Council is committed to providing a range of Sports, Health, Youth outreach activities to serve its rural communities.

The Sustainable Community Strategy for North Kesteven establishes a single framework of priorities for the District with alignment of Local Strategic Partnership and District Council priorities. It provides a framework for action in North Kesteven and represents a long-term vision of how the District will continue to develop and improve whilst ensuring a better quality of life for everyone.

South Holland

South Holland is a deeply rural district set in the south of Lincolnshire. It is the heart of the unique broad horizons of the fens. Not only do the Wash wetlands offer magnificent skies, but the Wash area itself is of exceptional importance to marine wildlife. It is designated as a Special Protection Area (SPA), Ramsar site and Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI). It also forms part of The Wash and North Norfolk Coast Special Area of Conservation (SAC). Many people appreciate the special nature of this area and enjoy living, working and visiting its special aces such as the lighthouse that was home to the artist Peter Scott, easily seen from the extensive coastal paths.

Sparsely populated with an estimated 83,400 residents (based on ONS midyear 2009 population estimates), South Holland has an interesting mix of older people and newly arrived working communities from Portugal, Poland and the Baltic states. The district's population has been growing and this pattern is set to continue at rates above those of the rest of the country - it is predicted to increase by 15% up to 2016. This mix of people sets interesting challenges for the local cultural offer.

The Council has a corporate priority to "Improve health through cultural and sporting opportunities" and delivers this through its own Cultural Strategy 2007-2012. South Holland's priorities are very much in keeping with the principles of this wider County cultural strategy. For example South Holland's cultural priorities include the creation of accessible opportunities for people to actively participate in culture, developing the cultural infrastructure to meet the needs of its population to support community cohesion. It is responsible for running a significant part of the area's cultural facilities including a the South Holland Centre supporting the arts, Ayscoughfee Hall Museum and the Castle and Peele sports centres.

For more information please go to www.sholland.gov.uk.

South Kesteven

South Kesteven is one of the largest and widespread districts in the UK, with its population of 132,000 people (based on ONS mid-year 2009 population estimates) spread across more than one hundred communities. It is one of the top five fastest growing rural districts in England, with population growth of just under one per cent per year. However, it also has the third lowest inmigration rate in the county. The Council's priorities are to create an attractive and sustainable environment to ensure a good quality of life, to improve the skills and capacity of South Kesteven to meet local needs, and to develop the district's economy by supporting the growth of local businesses.

For more information please go to www.southkesteven.gov.uk.

West Lindsey

West Lindsey, situated in the north of the county, is the most sparsely populated district within Lincolnshire and the East Midlands region. With a population of 88,900 people (based on ONS mid-year 2009 population estimates), two thirds of its residents live outside of the three main market towns in rural locations. Between 1997 and 2007 there has been a population growth of 13.7% and this is expected to grow by 32.3% over the next 20 years. The age group that has increased the most since 1997 is the 85 and over band closely followed by the 60-64 band, a trend which looks set to continue with an expected increase of 62.5% by 2031. There is a low representation in the 15-34 age group and this trend is expected to continue. In 2007, 4.8% of the population were of ethnic origin, low compared to the national average of 16.4%.

West Lindsey is a District of contrasts in that just under 9% of West Lindsey residents live in neighbourhoods that rank in the 20% most deprived in the country but a further 21.7% of the population live within the 20% least deprived areas in the district. An Accessibility Audit carried out in 2007 highlights the continuing problem of lack of access to regular scheduled bus services for many of the small rural settlements across the district and some settlements have no access at all to any form of public transport or taxi service. Many of the rural settlements in West Lindsey do not have an adequate range of facilities to meet their inhabitants' daily needs and do not have the means to access those available.

The sparsity of the district's population, its changing profile and lack of service infrastructure creates challenges in terms of ensuring cultural provision for all. The Council's priorities are to develop the district's cultural provision as part of the Corporate Plan objective 'Developing a prosperous District'. This includes linking closely with the Gainsborough Growth programme, as well as developing local cultural activity and providing more community group support. Current provision includes three leisure/sports centres, the Trinity Arts Centre (a 300 seat theatre) and support for the Rural Touring Scheme, with numerous smaller projects from inclusive sports to art and craft workshops.

Access to cultural activities has a key role to play in enhancing the quality of life for residents and visitors in Lincolnshire. The range of natural and cultural resources in Lincolnshire have strong potential to impact positively on the economic and social life of the county.

The county boasts a diversity of natural landscapes, from the beautiful hill country of the Wolds and the waterscapes of the Fens, to the extensive eastern coastline, home to the world renowned Gibraltar Point. Lincolnshire's appeal is not isolated to its natural beauty, but encompasses a rich menu of cultural events, activities and places of historical interest to visit and enjoy. Residents and visitors alike can pick from an impressive range of heritage sites, from the 11th Century Lincoln Castle to the Elizabethan mansion of Burghley House at Stamford. The rich and varied nature of Lincolnshire's cultural offer make it an attractive destination for both domestic and international tourists. Events such as Lincolnshire show, Waddington Air Show, Spalding Flower Parade and Lincoln Christmas market are important attractors.

A Fundamental Review of Lincolnshire library service was undertaken in 2007 to ensure that the network of 48 static and 16 mobile libraries was fit for purpose, sustainable and able to deliver the County Council's strategic objectives. As a result of a comprehensive public consultation exercise 13 key areas for improvement were identified and these are currently being rolled out in a series of phases. Phase one focused on access and performance. Opening hours were reconfigured across groups of libraries to improve access throughout the day and across the week in defined localities. These group offers were supported by revised mobile routes with fewer, but longer stops which enabled better use of technology and partnership working. A new performance framework was introduced which identified three key measures: interactions, issues and new members. Phase 2 focused on the look and feel of libraries and technology. In addition to providing free access to Peoples Network computers, self issue systems have been installed in the 11 largest libraries and a further 13 sites are to be rolled out in 2010/11. Phase three will focus on reshaping the library network, implementing the mobile library review and testing book vending machines and an online offer.

Lincolnshire's desire to be an active partner in major world events is incredibly strong, for example, the Cultural Olympiad, Commonwealth Games and World Cup. These provide opportunities to build on national and international activities, such as the 2009Black/North SEAS project in East Lindsey. The 2012 Steering Group was established in Lincolnshire in March 2006 in order to maximise the potential benefits of the Cultural Olympiad to the county. The two-year free swimming scheme, for example, is funded by a central government grant of £63, 731 per year, along with funding from NHS Lincolnshire. The initiative is part of the government's commitment to the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. The 2012 steering group aims:

"To ensure benefit to Lincolnshire from the hosting of the London 2012 Olympic & Paralympic Games, through the advancement of the London Games and the Olympic & Paralympic brands pre and post 2012." ³⁵

The Action Plan for this activity is being refreshed at present and will cover themes including: young people; volunteering; events; economic development; culture; elite performance sport; pre games training camps; and legacy.

Lincolnshire has a traditional culture based on a long heritage of song, dance, music, local history, local festivals and sport. There are 292 outdoor tennis courts, 325 adult football pitches and 113 cricket pitches across the county, with over 1,900 sports clubs registered on the Sporting Lincs database³⁶. The County Sports Facilities Framework also contains a full assessment of the future facility needs of the County taking into account the above demographics and other variables.

In 2008, a joint strategic partnership between Lincolnshire Primary Care Trust and Lincolnshire County Council set up the Health and Wellbeing Fund. One of the programme's aims is to enhance the quality of life and capacity to contribute to local regeneration of local people, including their health and cultural and sports opportunities. A number of the Health and Wellbeing Fund projects involve engagement in cultural activities to support physical and mental health improvements, for which Lincolnshire Sports Partnership is a key project delivery partner. Below is a summary of the key activities and programmes being carried locally within districts that the Lincolnshire Sports Partnership believes has contributed towards increased adult participation.

Local Activities Contributing to Increased Participation

Local Activities	S Contributing to Increased Participation
Activity or programme	What it involves
Fit Kids	Fit Kids is about targeting overweight children and encouraging them to take part in sport and physical activity in order to reduce their weight and change their lifestyle. Its main focus is to encourage overweight children aged 8-11 to gain and maintain a healthy weight

Lincoln Cathedral and the county's churches are also of significant heritage and cultural interest and play a key role in the cultural life of the communities they serve. Many churches are keen to open their doors outside service times and to welcome local people and visitors to discover, enjoy and appreciate their buildings. Lincoln Cathedral alone is supported by 400 volunteers, and there are 650 parish churches and extensive parish records held across the County. Recent inward migration means that there is now a rich diversity in religious belief and custom within Lincolnshire's communities.

The scale and rural nature of the county can affect people's ability to access cultural services and as such is an ongoing challenge for service providers in the county.

In rural counties, the arts in particular have proved to have great impact on connecting communities and tackling rural isolation issues. Lincolnshire was one of the key founders of rural and community touring schemes, taking performing arts out of the city and market towns into village halls, churches and pubs through the development of a network of local village promoters³⁷. CACI Ltd has developed a postcode analysis model of Arts Council's 13 arts consumer segments³⁸. The model is based on the probabilities of people living in different English postcodes to belong to the 13 segments. It asks: given what we know about the demographic and lifestyle characteristics of the people living in that postcode, what segment are they likely to belong to? In Lincolnshire, the percentage of residents in the 'Dinner and a show' segment and 'Family and community focused' segment are greater than the English average.

Strong cultural provision will also play an important role in the development of new communities in the new growth areas, in terms of creating attractive and interesting places to live and work and in promoting community cohesion and a sense of identity. There are over 60 museums in the county, placing Lincolnshire on the map in terms of an unrivalled cultural asset, with a network of heritage organisations distributed throughout the county enabling people to learn about their heritage and participate in cultural activities. In a rural county, these sites are rooted in their communities. Lincolnshire has been dedicated to the delivery of the Renaissance in the Regions Programme and has a number of Designated collections.

Local celebrations add vibrancy to the culture of Lincolnshire, such as the Pumpkin Festival in Spalding, the annual Wold Word Literature Festival and the Lincolnshire Christmas Food and Drink Fair. A range of sporting and physical activities are on offer both on land or in the water and every week residents participate in a variety of interesting activities and clubs in local libraries and village halls around the county, from reading groups to dance workshops.

A public consultation carried out to inform the current Strategy found that people feel that more should be done to improve the quality and number of facilities and activities related to culture in Lincolnshire. Consultees also highlighted the need to improve the promotion of cultural activities³⁹.

It is, however, important to stress that many of the heritage organisations in Lincolnshire are very small and are run solely by volunteers. Without them, in large parts of the county there would be no, or very little, cultural provision. In order to ensure that there is a universal cultural provision and equality of access to culture across the county is it vital that support is given to these organisations.

In areas where organisations simply do not have the capacity, but where collections, heritage or buildings exist, partnership should be the key so that cultural opportunities can be delivered with and through existing heritage facilities. It is estimated that 95% of sporting activity could not take place without the support of volunteers and as part of the 2012 Legacy Plan, volunteering features as a key delivery element. It is not just that cultural organisations provide opportunities for people to participate through volunteering or that volunteers extend the amount and range of cultural provision: it is that without them there would be large areas of the county with limited or no cultural provision. Indeed, at 23.5%Lincolnshire is slightly above the regional (23.0%) and (23.2%) English averages for National Indicator 6 'People who have given unpaid help at least once a month over the last 12 months ⁴⁰.

³⁹Lincolnshire County Council Cultural Strategy Review Survey (2009)

Lincolnshire Strategic Context

A brief overview of the strategic context of Lincolnshire is provided here, into which the Cultural Strategy fits. Further detail regarding the national, regional and local context can also be found in Appendices 1, 2 and 3.

A key theme of all the strategies is the expected growth in population over the coming years. The level of growth is highlighted in the Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) which sets targets for the delivery of new homes. (Central Lincolnshire - City of Lincoln, North Kesteven and West Lindsey) alone are expected to delivery 40,000 new homes between 2001 and 2021. The designation of three Growth Points (Greater Lincoln, Grantham and Gainsborough) demonstrate the local authorities' commitment to delivery growth at a high level, even in excess of the requirements set by the RSS. The RSS also sets the policy framework for promoting cultural development, protection of the historic, natural and built environment, protection and enhancement of Biodiversity and economic development. (Local Development Strategies provide this approach at a more local level – see below)

The Sustainable Community Strategy for Lincolnshire sets out the overall strategic direction and long term vision for the economic, social and environmental well-being of Lincolnshire.

Vision for Lincolnshire

"..a Big County, with Big Skies that has a Big Future because Lincolnshire is the place where everyone can find and enjoy the lifestyle that suits them best".

Themes

- Vibrant communities where people enjoy life;
- Opportunities for good health:
- One of the healthiest and most sustainable economies in Europe;
- Good connections between people, services communities and places;
- Rich diverse environments, heritage and cultures that residents and visitors enjoy; and
- Supported by organisations working together for Lincolnshire.

The Cultural Strategy will support the realisation of all of the Sustainable Community Strategy themes, but especially "Vibrant communities", "Opportunities for good health" and "Rich diverse environments". For example, active participation in cultural activities can promote physical, emotional and mental well-being, the opportunity to share a common space with people from different backgrounds, helping to build trust and a sense of community.

The Sustainable Community Strategy defines the Local Area Agreement (LAA) for Lincolnshire. This is a three year plan for the delivery of key priorities for Lincolnshire, therefore the activity delivered through the Cultural Strategy will support delivery of priorities therein.

At a more local level each Council is preparing a Local Development Framework (LDF) which should ensure that new development is co-ordinated with the provision of infrastructure, whether that is schools, sewers or soccer pitches. (A joint LDF is being prepared for Central Lincolnshire) A key element of the LDF will be an Infrastructure Delivery Plan, which will demonstrate how and when infrastructure will be delivered and the relationship to particular development. A result of this could potentially be the phasing of development to coincide with planned infrastructure investment. The IDP will also be used as a tool for negotiating Developer Contributions in association with particular planning applications, either through the current legal agreement (Section 106) system or through the introduction of the Community Infrastructure Levy.

Local Development Frameworks may also include particular proposals with specific implications for the Cultural Strategy. These may include specific large scale developments, such as the proposed Urban Extensions of Lincoln and Gainsborough, which will have specific requirements for new cultural provision (some may be bigger than current market towns, and will generate their own demands and opportunities). The Wash Green Infrastructure Strategy and the designation of the Witham Valley Country Park also present particular opportunities that could be the focus of the Cultural Strategy

Other key strategies to which the Cultural Strategy will contribute are the Children's and Young People's Plan, the Lincolnshire Economic Strategy, Tourism Strategy, Joint Strategic Needs Assessment and the Third Sector Strategy. These documents set out priorities and actions for delivery of positive outcomes beyond the cultural sector, however, the aims and objectives of the Cultural Strategy are such that activity can make a significant contribution towards the achievement of these broader agendas.

With regard to specific components of cultural activity, a specific strategy for sport 'Loving Sport, Living Life: A Strategy for Lincolnshire to 2012 and Beyond' has been developed by the Lincolnshire Sports Partnership and it sets out a vision for sport in the county until 2020:

"By 2020 we will create a successful County that leads a healthy, sporting lifestyle".

In order to meet this vision the strategy sets out four key aims to be delivered:

- Improve awareness of sport in the County;
- Increase demand for sport across Lincolnshire;

- Develop people in and through sport across Lincolnshire; and
- Increase opportunities and provision of sport in the County.

In addition, a County Arts Strategy, 'This is Art', has been developed in parallel to Cultural Strategy to outline the immediate and long term needs and priorities for the Arts in Lincolnshire. As a result of a consultation process, the following vision for the Arts in Lincolnshire has emerged:

'To develop an arts culture that is driven by the people of Lincolnshire for the people of Lincolnshire where communities can explore and develop their own artistic identity and make a valuable contribute to the changing landscape of a changing county.'

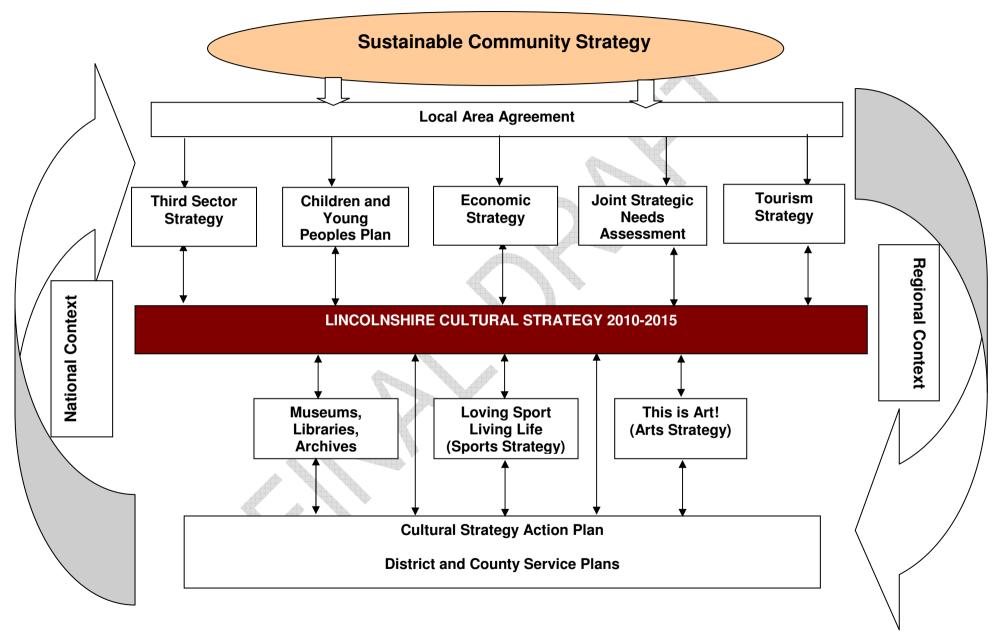

'Create an inspirational, locally powered, well connected arts infrastructure of regional, national and international standing that reflects the unique diversity of environment and community across Lincolnshire as an outstanding model of good practice for the arts in rural and coastal areas'

There are also a number of plans and policies for museums, libraries and archives in the County which, although not formalised as strategies, have synergy with the Cultural Strategy.

The Cultural Strategy aims to be an umbrella document for the whole of Lincolnshire's culture in all its forms and it is not a replacement for these specific strategies. It adds value by providing a mechanism through which the contribution of all cultural provision can be acknowledged. The specific strategies for sport and the arts enable priorities for these important elements to be expanded.

Mission Statement

As the country's economy recovers from the most severe economic downturn of recent times, the mission over the next five years is to develop, promote and enjoy the wide range of opportunities to participate in Lincolnshire's culture, which will help improve the County's economy, wellbeing and quality of life for its residents.

Lincolnshire's culture will make a positive contribution to the economic and social well being of residents and visitors. By maximising existing cultural assets and taking advantage of new opportunities, including the Cultural Olympiad and 2012 Olympics, we will ensure a wide choice of rich and varied cultural provision in Lincolnshire, promoting involvement, inclusion and quality of life.

Demonstrating Success

Commitment to Continuous Improvement

The County and District Councils have committed to the application of the Culture and Sport Improvement Toolkit (CSIT) process, part of the DCMS A Passion for Excellence Self Improvement Strategy, designed by Improvement & Development Agency (IDeA).

Participation in the Culture Improvement Partnership East Midlands (CIPEM) will also ensure that good practice is shared throughout the region.

There are a number of accredited facility and service standards which will be worked towards as appropriate, including Museum Accreditation, Green Flag, Visitor Attraction Quality Assurance Scheme, Public Library Service Standards, Quest Quality Scheme for Sport and Leisure and the National Benchmarking Service.

The national Active People and Taking Part surveys will provide data in relation to Lincolnshire's performance with regard to the National Indicator set, particularly National Indicators 8 to 11. The Public Library User Survey (PLUS) will also provide data for National Indicator 9, supplementing local statistics. The national Place Survey will also provide data in relation to a number of National Indicators, including 3, 5, 6 and 140.

It is most appropriate that measures of success link to the Sustainable Community Strategy, with Lincolnshire Senior Cultural Officers Group (LSCOG) as the responsible body accountable to the Sustainable Community Strategy Board.

Appendix 1: National Strategic Context

For the Department of Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) "cultural services play a crucial role in tackling social exclusion, contributing to regeneration, to promoting safer communities, encouraging healthier lifestyles, providing opportunities for voluntary and community activity and stimulating lifelong learning"⁴¹

Through the Department of Culture, Media and Sport, the Government has shown its commitment to increasing participation in cultural activities. Examples of national programmes and initiatives to do this include: 'Find Your Talent', a scheme which gives young people in England more opportunities to experience arts and culture; free admission to Britain's sponsored museums and galleries; and free swimming for senior citizens and young people. Taking Part: The National Survey of Culture, Leisure and Sport conducted in 2008/09 found that 65.9% of adults (aged 16 and over) in England had participated in two or more different cultural or sport activities during the past 12 months (between April 2008 to April 2009). By 2011 the Department of Culture, Media and Sport is expected to promote increased participation levels by at least 2 per cent⁴³.

Interestingly, the 2007/08 Taking Part Survey also found that there is a significant link between participation in cultural activity and people being satisfied with the area in which they live. The same survey in 2006 revealed that people who participate in cultural activities are 20 per cent more likely to have large social networks and are around 60 per cent more likely to believe that their neighbours can be trusted⁴⁴ compared to those who did not participate.

The agenda for culture is also supported by other Government departments. For example, the Department of Communities and Local Government (DCLG) recognises the important contribution made by culture in promoting community cohesion.

"Our strategy needs to consider new policy measures and approaches to promote common values and civic heritage... fund arts and sports activities which support national cohesion and cut across groups.... Promote leisure and culture activities that bridge divisions rather than reinforce them.... Focus on shared community projects – [e.g.] cultural work".

In economic terms, the cultural and creative industries⁴⁶ make a major contribution. According to the Department of Culture. Media and Sport's 2008 report, Creative Britain: New Talents for the New Economy, two million people are employed in creative jobs and the sector contributes £60 billion a year to the British economy. The report also states that over the past decade, the creative sector has grown at twice the rate of the economy as a whole and is well placed for continued growth as demand for creative content – particularly in English – grows. As such, these industries represent a major opportunity for local authorities looking to bring jobs and prosperity to their regions⁴⁷.

"The creative industries must move from the margins to the mainstream of economic and policy thinking as we look to create the jobs of the future"48.

The economic impact of tourism in Britain is also clear, with the Department of Culture. Media and Sport reporting in its Tourism Strategy for 2012 and Beyond (September 2007), that the industry generates over £85 billion a year for the British economy and is one of Britain's biggest employers, directly responsible for 1.4 million jobs. This strategy sets out the Government's intention to harness the opportunities and benefits presented by the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, to develop and promote Britain's tourism offer both at home and overseas.

In the Department of Culture, Media and Sport strategy Lifting People Lifting Places (May 2009) it is argued that tourism has the potential to help the UK economy through the recession. The culture and media sectors are a significant driver in the visitor economy with culture helping to position the UK as a brand and as an attractive place to visit⁴⁹.

A Modernisation Review of Public Libraries was launched by the Department of Culture Media and Sport in 2008 and is currently out for consultation. This will be informed by an All Party Parliamentary Group inquiry into the leadership and governance of public libraries. In 2009 The Chartered Institute of Library and Information Professionals have issued guidance on What Makes A Good Public Library Service? and an Inquiry into proposed library closures in the Wirral established criteria for meeting the requirements of the 1964 Public Libraries Act. UNISON also published a report on Taking Stock: the future of our public library service.⁵⁰

In terms of learning, the Government places emphasis on creativity and culture in schools and the curriculum, as well as the contribution of culture to informal adult learning.

"The Government attaches great importance to creativity in the curriculum as a means of supporting children and young people's personal development and achievement (...) and it applies across all subjects. Creativity in science and maths is just as important as in English and art. We recognise that creativity is one of the 'soft' skills which employers and Higher Education providers value⁵¹."

The important contribution that culture, in the form of informal adult learning⁵² activities, make to both individual lives and to the well-being of the nation, is highlighted by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) in the White Paper (March 2009) The Learning Revolution. It states that:

(Informal Learning) contributes to the health and well-being of communities by building the confidence and resilience of the individuals involved. The social relationships that develop as a result of this informal learning can provide networks of support and solidarity. For the low-skilled and under-confident, informal learning can be an important stepping stone to further learning and a more skilled future.

The health benefits of physical activity and active participation in cultural pursuits are well documented. For example, the 2009 British Social Attitudes survey⁵³ shows that frequent physical exercise and sociable activities are significantly linked to good health and happiness, as well as to social participation and social networks.

Within the Department of Health strategy (February 2009) Be Active, Be Healthy: A Plan for Getting the Nation Moving, the Chief Medical Officer argues:

Regular physical activity of moderate intensity, such as brisk walking, can bring about major health benefits as well as significant cost savings for the NHS. Increasing levels of physical activity would contribute to achieving reductions in coronary heart disease and obesity, hypertension, depression and anxiety. Even relatively small increases in physical activity are associated with some protection against chronic disease and improved quality of life.

Game Plan (Sport England) sets the challenge of moving from 30% of the population being regularly active in 1998 (5 times a week, 30 minutes, moderate intensity) to 70% in 2020. As a consequence of this broad target Sport England has adopted a target that by 2020 70% of the adult population will be taking part in sport (for at least 30 minutes) for a minimum of three times per week. In 2003, only 24.4% of the adult population currently achieves this target. Assuming there is no increase in sports participation by 2020:

Committee report into Creative Partnerships and the Curriculum (28 January 2008) ⁵²Informal adult learning encompasses a variety of activities, for example a dance class at a church hall, a book group at a local library, cookery skills learnt in a community centre or a guided visit to a nature reserve.

- Consumers' expenditure on sport in 2020 in England would be £20,996 million, or 2.4% of total consumers' expenditure. The comparable figures for 2001 are £12,687 million and 2.3%.
- Value-added to the English economy in 2020 by sport-related economic activity would be £19,345 million, or 1.7% of Gross Value Added (at basic prices). The comparable figures for 2001 are £12,100 million and 1.6%.
- Employment in sport in England would be 522,658 in 2020, compared to 393,712 in 2001. Employment in sport would account for 2.2% of total English employment in 2020 compared to 1.7% of total employment in 2001.

Assuming that the Sport England sports participation targets for 2020 are met:

- Consumers' expenditure on sport in 2020 in England would then be £46,319 million, or 5.4% of total consumers' expenditure, over double the percentage for the earlier 2020 scenario.
- Value-added to the English economy in 2020 by sport-related economic activity would be £42,282 million, or 3.8% of Gross Value Added (at basic prices), again more than double the previous scenario.
- Employment in sport in England would be 1.1 million in 2020, or 4.6% of total English employment in 2020. This is equivalent to current employment in the UK construction industry or about three times current employment in the UK publishing industry⁵⁴.

London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games and Cultural Olympiad⁵⁵

With the advent of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, sport and participation in physical activity are at the forefront of many people's minds, from policy makers to members of the public. The Cultural Olympiad is a four year long festival of high quality, accessible and innovative cultural activity between 2008 and 2012, in the run up to the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. It has a number of key aims:

- Promote participation in culture from communities across the UK;
- Leave a lasting contribution to cultural life;
- Showcase excellence in the performing arts, creative industries and sport;

⁵⁵London 2012 Website: http://www.london2012.com/get-involved/cultural-olympiad/about-the-cultural-olympiad.php

⁵⁴ The impact of achieving Sport England's target for making England an active nation by 2020

- Introduce young people to the wide variety of artistic provision from the UK and rest of the world;
- Heighten economic regeneration and encourage tourism in the UK through the work of the creative industries;
- Incorporate the Olympic values of 'excellence, respect and friendship' and the Paralympic vision to 'empower, achieve, inspire'.

London 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games could generate an estimated £2.1 billion in additional tourism benefits (2006 prices) for the UK over the period 2007-17⁵⁶.

Appendix 2: Regional Strategic Context

The Government Office for the East Midlands (GOEM) promotes the importance of culture in addressing issues such as social inclusion, health and crime, by working with a range of regional and local partners to identify where links can be made with other government programmes at a local level⁶³.

One significant way in which this promotion takes place is through its support of the regional Cultural Improvement Partnership for the East Midlands (CIPEM). The CIPEM aims to increase the impact and value of cultural services to the communities of the East Midlands by facilitating continuous improvement, effective delivery and shared service provision⁶⁴. The CIPEM also makes the case for culture and sport to be mainstreamed into the activities of local authorities. The partnership comprises representatives of the Key Regional Cultural Agencies and local government and is also supported by the East Midlands Cultural Observatory. This is a research resource that informs and advances cultural development. It seeks to improve cultural sector research practice in the region by initiating collaboration, informing methodologies and developing consistent approaches.

London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games and Cultural Olympiad⁶⁵

An East Midlands Management Board for the 2012 Games has been established to offer strategic direction for the region's activities. The East Midlands Development Agency has developed a region wide strategy for maximising the benefits of the Games, The East Midlands Strategy for the 2012 Games. One of the strategy's key priority areas is culture, within which there are three areas of focus for the East Midlands:

- Celebrating our aspirations, our cultural diversity and our creative industries through the delivery of the East Midlands' contribution to the UK Cultural Olympiad, autumn 2008 – autumn 2012;
- Supporting communities to develop and deliver their own cultural activities and to enhance their skills as participants and volunteers; and
- Promoting the region's rich cultural heritage for the benefit of the region and for attracting increased visitors.

The Cultural Olympiad is being delivered in each of the eight English Regions outside London by regional 'Creative Programmers'. One of their responsibilities is to encourage and enable organisations to get involved with the Games, and create opportunities for members of the public to take part.

Appendix 5: Glossary of Terms

Creative Industries - creative industries typically include industries that focus on creating and exploiting intellectual property products such as music, books, film and games; or providing business-to-business creative services including advertising, public relations and direct marketing. The Department for Culture, Media and Sport defines creative industries as: "those industries which have their origin in individual creativity, skill and talent and which have a potential for wealth and job creation through the generation and exploitation of intellectual property."

Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) - is a department of government with responsibility for culture and sport in England, and some aspects of the media throughout the whole UK, for example broadcasting. It also has responsibility for the creative industries (jointly with Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform) and tourism in England. Key Performance Indicator - relates to the Sport England Active People Survey, which measures six Key Performance Indicators on participation, volunteering, club membership, tuition, satisfaction with local provision and competition.

Lincolnshire Research Observatory (LRO) - the LRO was established in 1999 in partnership with Lincolnshire County Council, Lincolnshire Primary Care Trusts and Lincolnshire Police. The LRO aims to share and add value to data on social and economic issues affecting the County by providing a range of research materials to key partners.

Local Area Agreements (LAAs) - LAAs set out the priorities for a local area agreed between central government and a local area (the local authority and Local Strategic Partnership) and other key partners at the local level. LAAs simplify some central funding, help join up public services more effectively and allow greater flexibility for local solutions to local circumstances.

National Indicator - the Performance Framework for Local Authorities and Local Authority Partnerships contains 198 National Indicators. This national indicator set was developed as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 and reflect the Government's national priorities. Performance against each of the 198 indicators will be reported for every single tier and County council Local Strategic Partnership and this Strategy will look to directly impact directly on the National Indicators that sport can influence.

Public Service Agreement 21: Indicator 6 – PSA 21 "Build more cohesive empowered and active communities", was agreed as part of the 2008-11 spending period and is led by Communities and Local Government. The PSA is made up of six indicators, and DCMS leads on Indicator 6. The aim of Indicator 6 is to increase the percentage of adults (aged 16 and over) who participate in culture or sport. Participation is defined as taking part in two or more different cultural or sport sectors at the required frequency of participation.

"Taking Part" Survey – the "Taking Part" survey was commissioned by DCMS and its partner public bodies to collect data about engagement and non-engagement in culture, leisure and sport. This information helps DCMS better understand those who do, and do not, engage with its sectors. "Taking part' is a continuous national survey, achieving an annual sample size of around 29,000 people.

Ward - electoral wards/divisions are the key building block of UK administrative geography, being the spatial units used to elect local government councillors in metropolitan and non-metropolitan districts, unitary authorities and the London boroughs in England; unitary authorities in Wales; council areas in Scotland; and district council areas in Northern Ireland.
